Coat of Arms

Escudo de Armas

Brasão de Almargem do Bispo

Phù Hiệu

The episcopal heraldic achievement of the bishop's coat of arms is composed of a shield, with its charges (symbols), a motto scroll and the external ornaments. The shield, which is the central and most important feature of any heraldic device, is described (blazoned) in 12th century terms that are archaic to our modern language.

This description is done as if being given by the bearer with the shield being worn on the arm. Thus, it must be remembered, where it applies, that the terms dexter and sinister are reversed as the device is viewed from the front.

By heraldic tradition, the arms of the diocesan bishop are joined to the arms of his jurisdiction, seen in the dexter impalement (left side) of the shield. In this case, these are arms of the Diocese of Stockton.

They are composed of an upper blue portion, which is to honor the Blessed Virgin Mary. On this blue field are displayed a gold (yellow) lozenge (diamond) which is charged with a red cross to represent the Lord Jesus Christ in both His Divinity and in His Humanity. The lozenge is placed between two silver (white) angel wings to represent the Archangel Gabriel who announced the Incarnation and thus it refers to the Annunciation, titular of the Cathedral Church in Stockton. The chevron of black and silver vair and the gold star, on the red background of the lower portion of the design, are symbols that are retained from the "Stockton" family device. Thus, their use honors Commodore Stockton, for whom the See City is named.
